Preface

In presenting this, the first directory of Richmond, since the houses and places of business have been numbered, we have endeavored to make it as correct as possible and a book that will meet the requirements of the residents and business men alike. The publishers take great pride in this book, and have tried to get out a directory that will not only benefit the people of Richmond as a directory, but something that can be sent with pride to different cities of the United States, and be a medium that will bring new residents to your city. In connection with the publication of this directory every house and place of business in Richmond has been numbered, and the City Trustees have ordered signs with names of the streets placed on the different corners. In this enterprise we have met with the hearty support of the citizens and we herewith thankfully acknowledge the generosity of the people.

Respectfully

MUNICIPAL DATA.

The map of the first tract now embraced in the City of Richmond was filed for record June 3rd, 1899. The town was incorporated as a city of the sixth class August 3, 1905. The original boundaries were limited to a small area, taking in only that part of the settlement on the west side, some of the marsh land south and east and extending north only to the south line of the Standard Oil Company's property. On the 22nd day of December, in the same year, an election was held which resulted in annexing all the additional territory and constituting the City of Richmond a very formidable municipality. The boundaries of the city now include an area of about twenty square miles—13,000 acres. They extend from the Alameda county line on the south and west to the Marin county line on the north, both of which lines are well out in the bay. This includes all of the San Pablo peninsula, Red Rock, Brooks' Island, the Two Brothers' islands, on one of which is located the government light house, and a large area of level land extending eastward as far, and one hundred feet beyond, County Road No. 14, now known as Twenty-third street.

VALUABLE WATER FRONTAGE.

Within the present limits of the city are included something like fifteen miles of water frontage upon the bay. All of this water frontage is available for commerce, and a large portion of the same is very valuable by reason of the fact that the deep water comes close to shore, thus requiring but short wharves and piers and eliminating great perpetual expense in constructing and maintaining same.

It is a matter of history that this deep water along the shores included in the boundaries of the City of Richmond has maintained itself for many years, perhaps centuries. The United States geodetic surveys began here in 1856, and since that time the official records show that this gratuitous depth of water has not varied. There are several places where forty and fifty feet of water wash the very shores of the peninsula.

This deep water is due to the configuration of the land and sea at this point, which conspire to create favorable currents. The waters of the San Pablo bay, which is a great round basin ten miles broad, rush through the "narrows" at every tide, into San Francisco bay, forming a swift current that sweeps all sediment out to sea. Hence the stage of water at our docks is perpetual, doing away with all necessity for dredging.

A LAND-LOCKED CANAL.

Preparations for reclaiming the marsh land which separates the east and west sections of the city are now in progress by a private corporation known as the Point Richmond Canal and Land Co. The company has already dredged out a channel from Ellis' Landing on the lower bay extending some 2,000 feet northward and affording about ten feet of water at low tide. The canal will be made still deeper and arrangements are being perfected to fill in about 100 acres of land with earth taken from the bottom of the canal and from the adjacent hills. This will connect the two sections of town, affording continuous streets.

The canal will also add very materially to the lineal water frontage within the city limits and offer splendid sites for industries wishing transportation by both water and rail. Indeed several large institutions are booked already to establish works here. One, the Richmond Machine & Iron Works, operating also an extensive ship yard, are already laying the foundation for their buildings. They will start with one hundred or more employees and will no doubt grow into a much larger institution. The canal will eventually be extended out to the pier head line near Brooks Island and made accessible for vessels of larger draft. The plans of the company also include a ferry system to San Francisco for both freight and passengers. The total length of the canal will be nearly two miles when completed and it is prophesied that its banks will in the near future become a solid manufacturing district. It is certainly an enterprise full of promise to the City of Richmond.

FINE FOUNDATIONS.

The entire City of Richmond is underlaid with a hard clay, from one to six feet beneath the surface, which is so firm that it affords inflexible foundations. This clay extends right down to the waters of the bay. At no other known point on the coast does such a condition exist. This is a valuable asset to any manufacturing or shipping enterprise looking for a location, because it gives opportunity for economical foundations for heavy buildings or machinery at the water's edge, avoiding expense of pile-driving. This clay is so firm that in dredging the canal referred to above it was found necessary to loosen it up by blasting, before the dredger could move it. And since the canal was dredged (some of it nearly two years ago), it has not washed a particle. This is quite different from the quivering quags that usually border the bay.

POPULATION.

A complete census of the city has never been compiled. At the time of the last decennial census of the United States there were but few people here. At the close of the year 1900 there were not over twenty buildings in the settlement. By the time the government enumerator gets around in 1910, it is safe to predict the population will exceed 20,000, and it may reach 30,000. This directory is supposed to contain the name of every adult inhabitant. The compilation covers 2,600 names. Multiplying this by  $2\frac{3}{4}$  the figure usually employed in computing population by city directories and we have 7,150, which is probably not far from correct.

The city has good primary and grammar schools and will soon be provided with a high school. The school districts of San Pablo and Stege have joined with Richmond in the organization of a high school district and a commodious building is being planned.

Churches and Fraternal Societies are numerous.

TAXATION.

The City of Richmond had, in 1906, an assessed valuation of $3,417,270, making it the seventeenth city in California in taxable wealth. It has no bonded indebtedness and a tax rate of only 35 cents, being the amount of road tax which the people living within incorporated towns are exempt from paying into the county treasury. The high valuation will always insure a low tax rate and public improvements will prove to be an inconsiderate burden.

COMMERCIAL PROGRESS.

The prophecy was made from the outstart that Richmond would easily and markedly become the "Pittsburg of the West," and its early progress toward that destiny is a matter of congratulation to her own people. It has unparalleled advantages as a manufacturing and shipping point. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad has its freight and passenger terminal here and maintains a frequent ferry from its mole to San Francisco, a distance of 7 8-10 miles. The Southern Pacific's main line also passes through the city and both roads have constituted Richmond a terminal point, thereby granting the very lowest through rates on all commodities. Richmond is also a United States Port of Entry.

The Richmond Belt Railway is an independent corporation which owns a road running around the peninsula and affording switching facilities to the various wharves and factories.

The East Shore & Suburban Railway is an electric line which connects all parts of the city with Oakland, Berkeley, Stege and San Pablo, giving at the present time a twenty-minute service—ten minutes on Sundays. It is well built, has the most modern rolling stock and is a great convenience to Richmond's developing commerce.

The Western Pacific, the Gould line, has surveyed a branch to Richmond from a point near Tracy and as soon as the main line is completed will build this branch.

The pioneer industry to locate in Richmond after the arrival of the Santa Fe railroad, was the Standard Oil Refinery. Adding to Richmond's natural advantages the certainty of cheap fuel oil it was then that the prophecy of a manufacturing center began to be realized. By the double pipe line which Mr. Rockefeller's company constructed to the oil field in the San Joaquin valley oil is now delivered to tidewater at Richmond at nominal cost. The big refinery is one of the largest in the world, and if it keeps growing as it has since its first location it will become the largest in the world. It already gives employment to about 1,300 people. It has its own acid plant, car shops, can and barrel factories. It maintains a large fleet of oil carriers, going to all parts of the world and its daily product shipped by rail amounts to a train load a day.

Other industries here are the Santa Fe railroad's repair shops and yards, the Richmond Manufacturing Co. (furniture), the Berkeley Steel Co., the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co., the Central Brick Co., the Richmond Brick Co., the California Wineries Association, the Associated Oil Co., the Richmond Machine & Iron Works, the Richmond Ship Yard, Pottery Works, beer depots, lumber yards and planing mills.

The California Wineries Association are putting in an investment of about $3,000,000 and will give employment to two or three hundred people. The Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co. are likewise erecting an extensive plant and will give employment to as many more. The Berkeley Steel Co. will manufacture structural steel and will employ about one hundred men. The Richmond Iron Works and Ship Yard will employ as many more.

The contract was let March 9, 1907, for the construction of the finest opera house on this side of the bay by the Richmond Opera House Company. The building is to be erected on the vacant lot beside the Berkeley Cafe and facing on Tewksbury avenue. It is to be of modern architecture, and the contract price calls for a little under $20,000.

The style of architecture will be highly artistic; the fittings and furnishings will be elaborate and every detail has been entered into with the view of giving the people of Richmond and Contra Costa county a play house that they may well feel proud of.

The major portion of the work on this project has been accomplished through the untiring efforts of P. M. Dean, to whom the urgent need of a house, such as he proposes to build, appealed.

The City of Richmond invites and will extend every inducement to other industries to locate here. No place on the Pacific Coast has advantages to offer manufacturers that will equal those at Richmond. The city has fine water works, electricity for power and illumination, telephones, telegraph (both Western Union and Postal), a live Chamber of Commerce, cheap lands, low taxes, and the very best shipping facilities, both by rail and water.

Reliable information may always be obtained by addressing the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Too Poor to Clean

...and Tom's home. In the morning the boy was up at 5 a.m., and Richard worked at his desk until 8 a.m. Then he and the boy cleaned the house.

Richard had seen Dredge C. and his wife
at the office of the Standard Oil Co. yesterday.
He asked them if they were members of the church, and they answered, "I don't know," and went away. He followed them to their car, however, and stopped them, and said, "Will you stop at my home and let me speak to you?" They did so,
and he told them about his wife.

"We are in a bind," he said, "but we have nothing but oil to live on. This house is all we have, and we are bound to live here. We are waiting on you, Mr. and Mrs. C."

Richard then told the couple that he had been working at the Standard Oil Co.
for 20 years, and that he had 200 hours of vacation time available.

"I would like to help you out," he said.
"I am not rich, but I have $1000 in the bank, and I will give it to you." The couple were greatly moved by this offer, and Richard then took the boy home.
